Deiá is located on the north west coast, close to the shore in the Serra de Tramuntana, on the coastal road Ma-10.

It has always been a village for artists.

Deiá was the chosen home of the famous English writer Robert Graves († 1985). He worked and lived there with his family. We will visit his house with garden, the place of inspiration for many of his works. We also visit other ateliers of contemporary artists and potteries.

We also go the flower-adorned Way of the Cross through the old village up to the chapel and the cemetery, which is famous for its exceptional location and its views of the sea and the mountains.

We will have time to stroll in this special place and to eat something for lunch at a Majorcan restaurant (Menu: 15 €.)
